THURSDAY, April 28 The Ohio Patriot Act

Senator Jeff Jacobson, Ohio Senate; Carrie Davis, staff attorney, ACLU of Ohio
Introduced in late January by state Sen. Jeff Jacobson (R-Butler Township), the Ohio Patriot Act, or Senate Bill 9, sailed through the Ohio Senate with unanimous support. The anti-terrorism bill, which would expand police powers and strengthen anti-terrorism laws, now heads to the Ohio House. The version of the bill passed by the Senate has generally been praised by lawmakers and some opponents as a more clearly written document that now musters bilateral support. However, the bill still has critics. Civil libertarian groups, such as the ACLU of Ohio, have concerns that the bill unnecessarily expands police powers, threatening individual rights. Please join us for a debate on the merits and provisions of this controversial piece of legislation.

Financial analysts say that the $160 billion-a-year global beauty industry is expected to grow 7% a year, more than twice the rate of the developed world's average gross domestic product! And, guys, before your chuckle at the vulnerability of your female associates, you might be interested to know that men's grooming is now the fastest growing segment in the beauty industry, because men are spending $14 billion a year on beauty products.

Different Voices: Exploring Columbus' Diversity

Moderated by: Jim Stowe, executive director, Columbus Community Relations Commission

Panelists: Thomas Scheid, interim director, Franklin County Job and Family Services; Roberta Garber, executive director, Community Research Partners

Franklin County's growing population reflects an ever increasing diversity of culture, religion and color. According to the 2004 United Way of Central Ohio Community Assessment Report, since 1990, growth rates of the black or African American, American Indian, Asian and Hispanic populations far surpass that of the white population.

Men, women and children from all over the world are beginning to change Columbus. They bring with them their skills, cultures and religions. They want to work and be a part of the community. Many people see the social, cultural, and economic value of embracing our emerging diversity.

Our increasing diversity also brings challenges. Medical providers, schools and employers look for ways to over-

Public Art Could Mean Economic Boost for Columbus

CMC Members Jack Marchbanks and Nancy Duncan Porter

"As a community, we really must re-gather in the hearts of our cities to have an urban space. Common unity is the source of community and we need to rebuild community all across the country.

- Barnaby Evans

"Public art is always about controversy, debate and discussion. That's good because it brings people into the mix and this point of contact between art and people is really the vital moment."

- Nannette Maciejunes

As far as I'm concerned, anything that brings attention to our river and draws people downtown at night is worth the effort."

About Us...

CMC firmly believes in the free expression of all ideas and the benefits of an open exchange of information. CMC is non-partisan and takes no positions on issues.

Anyone can join! From the beginning, there have been no barriers to membership and all forums have welcomed the general public. Diversity, both in programming and membership, is one of the many benefits of being involved in CMC. Everyone is welcome.

Each forum is an hour-long program that starts with a brief introduction followed by 25-30 minutes of speaker comments. The final half hour is filled with unfiltered, unrehearsed questions from the audience.
