Story Corps: The National Storytelling Project Comes to Columbus

David Isay, Founder and Executive Producer, Sound Portraits Productions

Its subjects have ranged from births to deaths to first kisses. Now the oral history project is taking to America's highways. Begun in a booth in New York's Grand Central Terminal, StoryCorps encourages friends and family members to interview loved ones for posterity - you get to keep a copy and the interview is added to the StoryCorps Archive, housed at the American Folklife Center at the Library of Congress. Ohio residents will have a chance to tell their stories when StoryCorps arrives in Columbus - using an Airstream trailers as recording studio on the grounds of the Statehouse from July 5 - 25. David Isay, the creator of StoryCorps, will discuss his inspiration for StoryCorps and its phenomenal success. Sponsored by: NPR 820 WOSU-AM and The Jeffrey Company

Broad & High: The Downtown Evolution Continues

Bill Riat, president, Casto

Broad and High is an exciting new, mixed-use development on the northeast corner of Broad and High Streets that will transform Columbus's historic downtown corner into an exciting, dynamic hub of activity. In addition to the new, luxury condominiums of 8 on the Square, development plans include street-level retail, "Class A" offices, an array of stunning, scrolling, lighted digital ticker tapes, billboards, parking garage and gardens atop the four-story building that fronts this major intersection, creating a vibrant atmosphere like that enjoyed by New Yorkers in Times Square. Bill Riat will take us on a unique tour of the project with a stunning visual presentation and explain how 8 East Broad Street will become 8 on the Square - downtown's most prestigious address!

Green Buildings on the Columbus Horizon: Environmental and Economic Benefit

Lawrence L. Fisher, president & CEO, Columbus Downtown Development Corporation; Brian Ezell, The Georgetown Company; A. Michael Schwarzwald, director of the Environmental Stewardship Office, SWACO

Harvesting rainwater for cooling, recycling demolition debris and growing plants on the rooftop are just a few examples of the green technology that Columbus Downtown Development Corporation (CDDC) and Project Developer, The Georgetown Company, intend to use on the Lazarus Building renovation.

"Green development makes good sense from a business and environmental perspective and will bring conservation, health and economic benefits," said Lawrence L. Fisher, President and CEO of CDDC. "We're keeping the building's historic character while using environmentally-friendly materials and techniques to give it a new life."

The Lazarus Building renovation is a major piece of Mayor Michael B.

Coleman's Get Green Columbus Campaign, which promotes and improves environmental stewardship while encouraging the development of green buildings and jobs in Columbus. In April of this year, Michael Schwarzwald began serving as the first Director of SWACO's "Environmental Stewardship Office." He advises SWACO and the Mayor on green policy issues, promotes the "Blue Bag" recycling initiative and conducts community outreach and education efforts on the environment.

Find out why green development makes good sense from a business and environmental perspective. You'll also learn about the city's new "Get Green" initiative to promote responsible and sustainable growth.

CMC's First On-Site Forum a Success!

Dan Schmidt of JDS Companies discussed the challenges and rewards of developing new and unique busness and residential space in downtown Columbus. He was joined on stage by Spectrum Properties' Bill Shelby and Capital South's John Rosenberger for an insightful and lively discussion about downtown revitalization and Columbus' future.

More than fifty CMC members and guests woke up early to join us for our first CMC on Site event. The North Market proved to be a gracious host and a delicious continental breakfast was provided by Pastaria. Guests enjoyed fresh pastries and hot coffee to the sights, sounds and wonderful smells of North Market merchants setting up shop for the day.

Special thanks to all who attended and helped to make our first CMC on Site a huge success. Please save the morning of Friday, July 15 for an exciting sneak peek of North Bank Park!

Ohio Secretary of State Addresses CMC

CMC Board Member Nick Ashooh and Secretary of State J. Kenneth Blackwell

"Right now there is a culture that absorbs both political parties and it says 'you get along by going along' - it protects the status quo. That has got to change."

Ohio Secretary of State J. Kenneth Blackwell

"There has never been a state that has tax and spent its way into prosperity."

Ohio Secretary of State J. Kenneth Blackwell

CMC Members Erin Deignan, Susan Johnson Lyons, Stacia Hentz and Nancy Magargal

"Unless we do major surgery to our tax structure, Ohio will continue to see flight of capital and flight of people."
