Developing the Next Generation of Leaders: Whose Job is it?

Carolyn Martin, Ph.D., Rainmaker Thinking (Book Signing to Follow Forum).

This Forum is Presented with Special Underwriting from Nationwide and in Partnership with Diversity Matters.

Rainmaker Thinking principal Carolyn A. Martin, Ph.D. is a world-class keynote speaker, seminar leader, and master trainer in the "art" of understanding and developing Gen X-Gen Y.

An ever-growing dragon of a leadership crisis is bearing down at break-neck speed on organizations across the country. Aging workers, baby boomers, are retiring in massive numbers over the next ten years, leaving behind, a gaping hole in corporate leadership. Simultaneously, fewer talented young workers will commit to their parents' traditional career paths that guaranteed leadership succession in the workplace.

Martin's presentation is a must for business leaders, human resource professionals, and emerging leaders themselves. Founded in years of primary research, focus groups and countless interviews with Gen X-Gen Y people, she poses new ways to think about leadership development and new ways to prepare the next generation for leadership roles.

An expert on generational diversity and performance management, Martin and Rainmaker partner Bruce Tulgan, co-authored Managing Generation Y, Managing the Generation Mix and The Customer Service Intervention.

Martin has wowed audiences across North America, the UK, and Japan for the past 20 years and consistently receives rave reviews for her humor, practicality, and passion. US News and World Report, The LA Times, Global HR, and Nursing Management have featured her work.

Book Signing Following the Forum:

Managing the Generation Mix (2nd Edition)

by Carolyn A. Martin, Ph.D. and Bruce Tulgan

(The book will be available for sale at the forum for $15)
