CMC and Bricker & Eckler Present Leadership Legacy Series

Jameson Crane, The Crane Group

The Crane story begins in the 1920s, with light shining from the grand chandelier in the ceiling of the Ohio Theater in Columbus. The young man who created the beautiful, intricate fixture had built a thriving business based on designing and producing unique products. His name was Robert S. Crane, and when the Great Depression put an end to his lighting fixture business, he lost nearly everything undefined except his work ethic, his optimism, and the support of his wife and children. Over the next difficult decade, he filled a variety of jobs and eventually created Taytec Corporation in 1947, a modest plastics manufacturing company that would become the Crane Group of today.

The company thrived in the 1960s, '70s, and '80s under the guidance of Robert's sons, Robert Jr. and Jameson. And today it continues to grow, led by the third generation of Crane family members and trusted associates.

Today, Crane's third-generation family leaders carry on this tradition, with Tanny Crane as President and CEO. The Crane name is well known in central Ohio, where the family is recognized as a generous and committed partner in the community. Columbus has been a supportive base for Crane Group over the years, and we feel a strong and ongoing obligation to give back, through substantial financial gifts, scholarships, organized volunteer efforts, and personal time on boards.

Crane family members involved in the business include Mike Crane (president of The Crane Group Companies) and Timothy Miller (vice president and general counsel of Crane Group). Chairman Emeritus Jameson Crane and his son, Jay Crane, both participate in many meetings and events, and Loann Crane, wife of the late Robert Crane Jr., is highly respected for her many ongoing philanthropic efforts and has a frequent presence in the offices.

The hardships that Robert Sr. faced in the early days are now company lore, and his entrepreneurial spirit is an essential quality in the business today. Son Jameson (Jim) will share his father and his family's story in this CMC Leadership Legacy.
